

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN READY FOR DUTY AT PRISON

BROTHERS' TRIAL FOR MURDER OF LINGLE STARTED

No Evidence Is Expected In Strange Trial For About Week

Criminal Court, Chicago, Mar. 16—(AP)—Leo Brothers went on trial today for the Alfred Lingle murder amid excitement such as the new Criminal Court building had not seen before.

Although no evidence is expected for at least a week, a large crowd jammed the corridors leading to Judge Joseph Sabbath's courtroom long before the scheduled opening. Extra bailiffs were needed to keep order after newspapermen and viremen had entered through a side door. There was little room for the curious, but the overflow kept doggedly at the doors.

The trial held unusual interest for Chicago. Not only was the assassination of Alfred Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, one of the most spectacular of gang killings, but it was also the first big gang shooting actually to result in a murder trial. Added to this was the fact that the Lingle slaying, last June 9, resulted in the greatest drive against crime in recent Chicago history.

Defendant Calm
The defendant, accused of killing Lingle for fee, and a fugitive from St. Louis, was calm as usual when he was brought in. He glanced over the crowd, smiled slightly over the interest his case was creating, and slouched back into his chair to hear his attorneys wrangle with the state over a list of witnesses.

From a pack of motions the defense drew one asking that bailiffs refrain from searching lookers on. "It gives a bad impression to the jury," defense counsel Tyrell Krum argued.

The defense also renewed its demand for a complete list of state witnesses. Judge Sabbath compromised on an agreement that as soon as new witnesses were obtained the defense should immediately be notified.

Mrs. Rose Jensen, Brothers' mother, was in court with her daughter, Mrs. Esther Dick.

Harry Cantwell, St. Louis attorney, was allowed to join the defense counsel.

Both Sides Confident
Both the prosecution, which has closely guarded the basis for its charge, and the defense, were confident of the outcome. Other than saying Brothers was identified as the slayer, the state has revealed no details.

The defense hoped to establish that Brothers was in the Riviera hotel at the exact hour Lingle was slain. In addition Brothers' lawyers were hoping to use two anomalous situations in his behalf—the arrest of Frankie Foster, a gangster, who was held under a technical indictment for the killing, and a voluntary confession by Frank Bell that he participated in the Lingle murder.

Brothers, arrested in St. Louis 60 times and wanted there for a taxi slaying, has never been convicted of a crime.

Patrick Roche, Chief Investigator for the State's Attorney's office, immediately after Brothers' arrest, described the accused man as a "slayer without a nerve in his body" and declared he would "stake his reputation" that he was the man who killed Lingle. But then, as now, Brothers stood without a sign of emotion, following this attitude up by standing mute in court when he was first arraigned for trial.

Indications that the case would be bitterly fought loomed before the work of selecting the jurors was under way.

Aside from Brothers' guilt or innocence the big question that awaited an answer was:

"Why was Lingle killed?"

Grants For Pipe Line Right Of Way Filed

Attorneys for the Great Lakes Pipe Line Company this morning filed 43 right-of-way grants in the office of Circuit Clerk Edwin S. Rosecrans. This is the first of a large number of grants to be filed before the actual construction program is begun.

Representatives of the company, who have been engaged in securing right of way through Lee county for several weeks, were authorized by the statement that it was expected that the line would be completed this summer. It was also stated that a sub station would be erected, possibly near Scarborough, where supply tanks, pumping stations and cottages for employees would be erected for the accommodation of oil companies using the pipe line system.

Oddities in the NEWS

BIDS UNQUESTIONED

Kansas City, Mar. 16—(UP)—Dr. Logan Glendinning, literary doctor and author of "The Human Body," is taking no chances on getting shot at a bridge game.

He took a shotgun to a party, placed it at his side and kept it there throughout the game.

His bids were not questioned.

Des Moines, Iowa, Mar. 16—(AP)—Curfew for Iowa dogs may ring at sunset.

A bill was introduced in the House today to require dogs to stay on their home premises between sunset and sunrise unless accompanied by their owners.

All dogs running at large at night would be declared a public nuisance and could be seized and killed as provided by law.

TOO MANY BELLS

Chicago, Mar. 15—(AP)—There were far too many bells in the marriage of Mrs. Stella M. Weber, she told Superior Judge John J. Sullivan, through his attorney. First there were the wedding bells when she married John Weber, an electrician. She had no objection to these but when John rigged up a device by which he could annoy her by ringing four telephone and three door bells in her home at the same time, it was too much and she asked for a divorce.

She got it.

Chicago, Mar. 16—(AP)—"I need," said Mrs. Gunnar Anderson over the telephone to a police sergeant, "your help."

"What," asked the Sergeant, "seems to be the trouble?"

"It's my husband," she replied. "He hasn't been home for 18 hours. Can't you do something please?"

"We'll try," said the Sergeant, and sent officers to his office. There in a back room, they found him. Surrounded by piles of paper.

"Go away," he said. "Don't bother me. Can't you see I'm trying to get this income tax report done in time?"

LIKES DOORMEN

Chicago, Mar. 16—(UP)—Hotel doormen have a strange fascination for Miss Betty Jahnke, 19, a model, she admitted today as she laughed over the fact she had spent two consecutive week-ends in jail.

A week ago Miss Jahnke hired a cab. She was taken to a hotel. The doorman opened the cab door. She got out, bowed, got back in and had the driver take her to another hotel. She visited 11 hotels before the cab driver got suspicious, tried to collect his fare, failed and made his next stop in front of a police station.

Last night Miss Jahnke went through the same procedure, except that the driver was a bit slower and she visited hotels instead of 11. Again she didn't have the fare and again she went to jail.

"There's something about the doormen I just can't resist," she confided to police. "It makes me feel so grand, you know, to have them open the cab door for me."

WEALTHY BRITON DEAD

London, Mar. 16—(AP)—Hugh Morrison, 62, one of the wealthiest men in all Britain died here yesterday after a long illness. Morrison's fortune was supposed to be several times the amount left him by his uncle in 1922, about $55,000,000.

TELEGRAM ADDS TO MYSTERY OF SUPPOSED DEATH OF PERRY, IA. POLITICIAN AND MANUFACTURER

Perry, Iowa, Mar. 16—(UP)—Mrs. John M. Smith today expressed the conviction that a body found cremated in her husband's burning truck near Denison, Iowa, last month, was not that of her husband, and asked that it be removed from the family plot at a local cemetery.

Smith's brother, Otis S. Smith of Manilla, Iowa, still believes the body that of his brother. When told that dental and medical charts proved that the body could not have been Smith's.

"That's a lot of bunk."

Denison, Ia., March 16—(AP)—Authorities today continued to trace the activities of John Smith, Perry insecticide manufacturer, prior to his disappearance in an effort to solve the identity of a corpse buried as Smith.

Attention today was centered on a telegram presumably sent by Smith from Coon Rapids, Ia., the day before his blazing truck containing the charred body of a man, was found on a road near here.

The investigators were informed the telegram was sent to Mrs. Smith February 2 and told of plans for a trip to Minneapolis the next day.

F. E. Hastings, agent for the Milwaukee road at Coon Rapids, was asked to have told officers that a week later a man he believed to be Otis Smith of Manilla, Ia., a brother of John, inquired about the wire.

Today the officers continued their investigation of the management of the Farm Disinfectant Company, owned by Smith, who was a candidate for Governor on the Farmer-Labor ticket in 1920.

It also was expected a decision would be reached by tomorrow as to whether the unidentified body would be disinterred for identification.

When found, the body practically had been consumed by fire, which had spread from a quantity of insecticide in the truck.

A watch and some keys belonging to Smith were found nearby.

An autopsy revealed the corpse had been embalmed before the fire and that identifying marks of Smith were lacking.

Mrs. Smith was the sole beneficiary of $25,000 double indemnity insurance held by her husband, Donald Holdogel, attorney for the insurance companies, said Mrs. Smith had entered a claim for $10,000 of the amount.

TRAIL OF NEGRO BRUTES LED TO CHICAGO TODAY

Race Feeling Subsidied In East St. Louis Over the Week-End

East St. Louis, Ill., Mar. 16—(UP)—Search for two Negroes who attacked two women and a 17-year-old girl after looting three homes and grocer, told authorities he had driven transferred today to Chicago.

The pair were traced to Effingham, Ill. Saturday by four deputies who had found a stolen automobile abandoned by the Negroes at Mulberry Grove, Ill. Walter Durr, a binding and gagging several men were the Negroes to Effingham, where they boarded a train for Chicago.

A description of the Negroes, identified by Fulton, Ky., authorities as the same pair who attacked two women, bound and gagged a man, his wife and two children there Thursday night, was telegraphed to Chicago police. According to word received at police headquarters here today no trace of the pair has been found in Chicago.

Meanwhile race feeling which ran high for a time Saturday night, had completely subsided today.

The attacks occurred Friday night, but because of the fear of race violence authorities suppressed the news until Saturday. The names of the women and 17-year-old girl who were attacked were withheld.

The Negroes entered three homes. In each case they bound and gagged two men and took all the money and jewelry they could find, before they attacked the women. Their total loot, police said, amounted to $300 worth of jewelry and $30 in cash.

Greatest Sporting Classic In Alaska Is Now Under Way

Fairbanks, Alaska, March 16—Alaska's greatest sporting classic—guessing on the minute at which the ice in the Tanana river will commence moving at Nenana—is under way at many towns throughout the territory, but with the interest centered at Fairbanks and Nenana.

The guessing contest, which is called the Alaska ice derby, or the Nenana pool, will close at midnight April 10, and weather sages and old timers who have watched ice break-ups for years are going into huddles to determine, if possible, the approximate time the ice will start moving this year in the Yukon tributary.

Each person who enters the contest deposits a coin with his guess. Last year there was more than $80,000 in the pool, which was split six ways, each winner getting in excess of $10,000. The person guessing closest the hour and minute the ice moves wins the pot.

This winter has been so mild that old timers predict an early break-up. The earliest ice movement in the last 15 years occurred in 1925, when the breakup started at 4:03 P. M. on April 26, while the latest started in 1925 at 6:32 P. M., May 17.

H. S. Kaiser, manager of the pool this year, declared that interest in the contest was more widespread each season. Whereas it used to be confined to residents of the Tanana it is now scattered throughout the territory.

Miss Anna Marie Hoberg, Dixon high school freshman who won the Dixon poor contest, for which a former Dixon man offered a prize of $100 today asked The Telegraph to express her gratitude to all concerned.

"I wish to take this opportunity to express my deep feeling of gratitude to all those who voted for poem number one in the recent contest, also the judges and this paper for their time and untiring efforts in this matter, and last but by no means least, the donor of the prize who by his purely generous spirit and keen interest in Dixon, made this contest possible."

Auto Thief Steals Contagion Germs

Chicago, Mar. 16—(AP)—The police were searching today for an automobile thief believed by them to be running a stolen car containing enough typhoid fever and smallpox germs to start an epidemic of either disease.

The germs were in phials which Dr. Edwin Reynolds of Berwyn, a suburb, was taking to his office, when the motor car was stolen.

SNOW-COVERED GLEN EVIDENCE OF DEATH FIGHT

Murder Theory In Miss Newby's Disappearance Supported

Chicago, Mar. 16—(UP)—Evidence strengthened the murder theory in the disappearance of Miss Newby today when police today near the wooded retreat where her middle-aged companion, Frank J. Murray, was beaten into unconsciousness by two bandits before she vanished.

A blood-soaked area of ground, a razor blade signs of a struggle, the remains of a lunch and the marks of automobile tires were found.

The location was a snow-covered glen between the 7th and 12th fairways of the Itasca Country Club's golf course, one and one-half miles from the forest preserve lane where Murray said he, and his 37 year old sweetheart were held up.

Roy Franz, cashier of the Itasca State Bank and Treasurer of the Country Club, said he was convinced a terrific struggle had occurred.

Evidence Reported
It was on March 4, two days after the holdup during which Miss Newby vanished, that William Mathies, groundskeeper of the club, discovered the evidence, Franz said.

Dupage county highway police attached no significance to it, but Chief of Police Wallace McClay notified Sergeant Laverne Dowder of the Cook county highway police when Miss Newby's disappearance became known.

Rower, McClay and Franz went to the spot to search for additional clues, but were prevented by snow which had drifted four and five feet deep.

Murray, his story of the holdup accepted by authorities, was questioned again yesterday, but gave only meager descriptions of the holdup men who robbed him and kidnapped Miss Newby.

Mrs. Murray, married to Murray for 25 years, was to be interviewed regarding her knowledge of her husband's 17-year friendship for Miss Newby.

MOVING DAYS LEAD TO DIVORCE

Radio—(UP)—They had to move 23 times because her husband would not pay the rent, Mrs. Ida Viola Schoenthal of Newark, N. J., declared in a complaint which won her a divorce from Milton M. Schoenthal.

His present plans do not include a visit to Cuba or to any other Caribbean or Latin American port.

Secretary Hurley, under whose department Porto Rico is governed, and Secretary Wilbur, whose department recently acquired the supervision of the Virgin Islands, will accompany Mr. Hoover.

Other members of the official party will be Lawrence Richey, one of the President's secretaries; Captain Joel Boone, the White House physician; Captain Train, naval aide and Colonel Campbell Hodges, military aide.

It has not been decided whether President Hoover will stay in Porto Rico. The Governor's palace there built by Ponce de Leon before he began his search for the fountain of youth, is one of the historic buildings of the western hemisphere. It is quite probable that Mr. Hoover will stop at the palace.

At the Virgin Islands, because of the brevity of the visit, the President will stay aboard the battleship Arizona except for a short inspection trip and possibly lunch with Governor Pearson of the islands.

Ford Would Pay For School Attendance

Fort Myers, Fla., Mar. 16—(AP)—Paying young people to go to school is advocated by Henry Ford.

In an interview here, the automobile manufacturer expressed a length his opinions on both education and diet, but on the latter subject he admitted his own menu might be disagreeable medicine to other folk. In education, however, he was very positive in urging the establishment of vocational schools which paid their pupils as a remedy for what he described and decried as wasted effort of school children.

Mr. Ford would combine practical and technical instruction with the teaching of theory. Young people, in all cases, should learn to read and write and gain a solid foundation along these lines, he said.

But from the eighth grade, said, practice and technique should hold equal weight with theory.

"Young people ought to be paid to go to school," he said. "They ought to learn to handle finances as well as to do other work."

The city's new garbage disposal truck which will be used during the summer, beginning April 1, was received at the Netts & Co. agency today and will be delivered to the department of streets soon. Rex D. Brown, employed in the city hall at Des Moines, Iowa, and Miss Audrey H. Kirchner, prominent Des Moines young lady, motored to Dixon Saturday afternoon to procure a marriage license. The court house was closed and they were directed to the county jail, arriving just as rock, plaster and debris, had been removed in the attempted delivery, were carried out and workmen who were to make repairs were moving their equipment into the jail.

TWO BLIND PERSONS LOST FIGHT AGAINST FLAMES THEY COULDN'T SEE TO SAVE THE LIFE OF ONE

Philadelphia, March 16—(UP)—Two blind persons fought for the life of one against the flames they could not see, but lost.

Mrs. Martha Hoffman, 28, blind since birth, died today of burns despite heroic efforts of her sightless husband, Daniel, 33, to save her.

For years the couple had been keeping their home, proud in their ability to do everything necessary without help.

Yesterday she was preparing dinner. Her sure, deft touch failed to tell her that her dress had brushed against the hot stove.

The tongue of flame shot forward. Suddenly she screamed as the heat seared her face. Then she became a mass of fire.

Carried Letters

"Rev. Whitmeyer was caught carrying letters to and from prisoners," said the Warden. "I have these letters."

"A convict brought to my office by Deputy Warden Erickson said Chaplain Whitmeyer was telling the prisoners 'what this place needs is a damn good riot.' This testimony was given me about January 29. Prison rules require that any information gained from convicts be backed up by other evidence, and concrete evidence has been sought."

Warden Hill was taken ill meanwhile and while he was in a Chicago hospital the "Secret Six" asked that Chaplain Whitmeyer be dismissed and at the order of the Warden, Col. Frank D. Whipp, State Superintendent of Prisons, asked his resignation.

Take a good look at this picture—and then drive more carefully. Just to a hospital, severely injured. After the skid the car took four somersaults one little skid caused all this wreckage and sent three men and two women and rested on its top. It happened at a busy New York intersection.

PROOF READING
UNTIL I started reading proof, I really didn't know that just a tiny letter could change a whole word so.

I read a Men's Club item (Alas, twas to my sorrow), Unconscious of my errancy But wiser on the morrow.

It seems that at the banquet Mr. Awas the main speaker. The "p" was changed to "q" and "u." So it said he was the squeaker. Of course the man was angry. And my boss was angry too; And I just said, "I'm sorry." What else was I to do? I don't see why the errors Escape my eagle eye; But everybody makes mistakes. And so, why shouldn't I?

Political Prestige Dawns for Women All Over the World

By W. W. CHAPLIN

London, Mar. 16.—(AP)—Through-out Europe women are turning their eyes from their hearths to the political arena, some with hope, some with determination and a number with actual distaste.

Even Asia has begun to open its political gates to wives and mothers. The House of Representatives in Tokyo has passed a bill granting women equal franchise rights with men in elections for city, town and village autonomous assemblies.

The women of England and Germany have secured a far firmer position in politics that most of their sisters in neighboring lands.

Turkish women, though only liberated from their harems during the past decade, are already on their way to Parliament.

In England, where the women fought militantly for the franchise fourteen other women have followed the American-born Lady Nancy Astor into the House of Commons. In Germany there are 39 feminine Deputies in the Reichstag, 28 of them being either Socialists or Communists.

In Austria women were barred from politics and even the professions until the collapse of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy. Parliament and the City Council were opened to Austrian women when the social Democrats came into power in 1919.

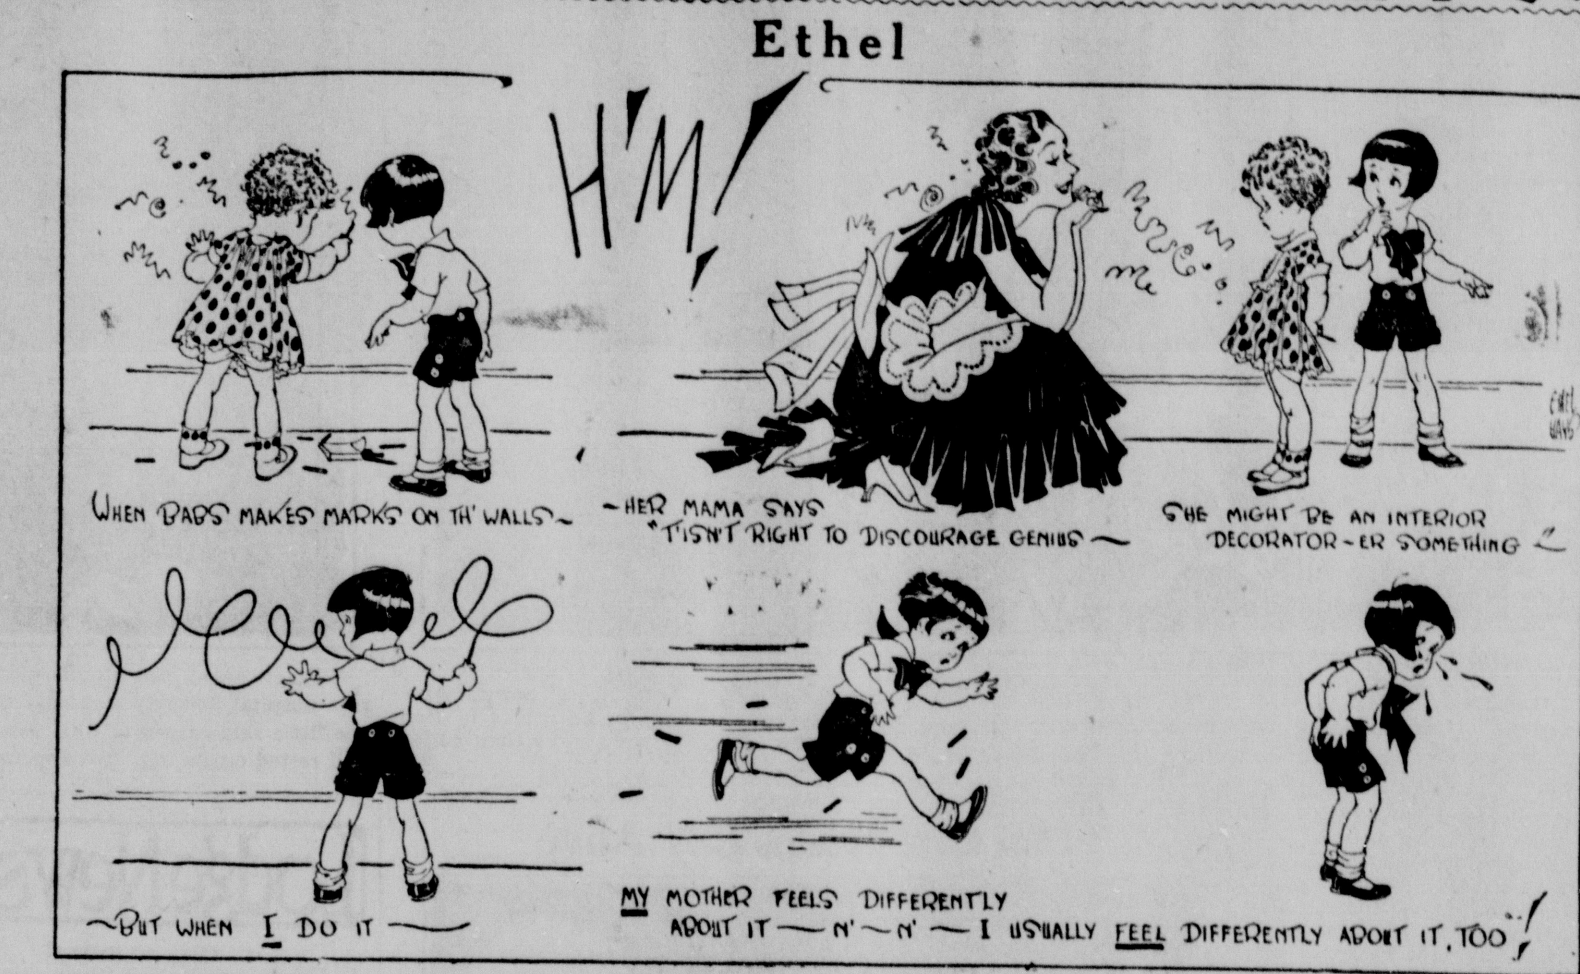

The women of France and Belgium have, in large part, looked at political life with apathy and often open distaste. In neither country can they cast their ballots in communal elections. This vote was given women more than 30 years old man who can read and write.

In Spain women can neither vote nor hold elective office and the movement for women's suffrage is so far practically negligible.

Italian women, like their husbands, are finding that the only road to political influence winds through the Fascist party.

Peggy Anne and Herbert Jr., Enliven Dignified Life at White House

Washington, Mar. 16.—(UP)—The two poor little rich grandchildren of the president are playing havoc with White House decorum.

Unable to get anyone their own age to romp with, they have begun secretly to play with the secret service men and servants of the Executive Mansion whose austerity and dignity have become seriously impaired.

There is not a mud puddle in the executive grounds; not a child in the neighborhood; no boy or girl next door; only the stately walls of Mr. Mellon's Treasury Department and the sombre columns of Mr. Stimson's State Department.

Five months they have been confined in luxury. Everywhere the portraits of Lincoln, Washington, Madison and Monroe stare down unfeelingly at them. The floors are like glass but they cannot be skated on. The banisters are long enough for sliding and has some thrilling curves, but always at the bottom there is a servant with the threat—"I'll tell grandpa."

"They think it is like living in a museum where you cannot touch anything."

There is nothing left to do except play with the servants, and this they do sometimes to the amusement of the doormen, butlers and waiters and sometimes to their annoyance.

"Look out, I'm coming!" shouts little Peggy Ann, aged five. Whoever happens to be the object of attack must stretch out his arms to catch her, else she will fall upon the floor. The tails of morning coats are pulled with glee.

Her brother, Herbert, 3rd, aged 3, spends most of his time looking for sliding and has some thrilling curves, but always at the bottom there is a servant with the threat—"I'll tell grandpa."

Peggy Ann likes the English setter pup while Herbert likes the new elc-hound recently shipped from Norway. With these two dogs from the kennels they romp around the White House backyard, which is manicured almost daily by the retinue of gardeners. Little Herbert has found the yard so clean he cannot even get his face dirty, try as he will.

Occasionally in the afternoon Mrs. Hoover takes the two children riding in an automobile, but on all other occasions they are confined to the premises. They sometimes eat breakfast with their grandfather, but at all other meals they eat by themselves in their own dining room upstairs. At times when their mother returns for a few days from Asheville where their father is confined by illness, she eats with them.

Promptly at 8 P. M. they are off to bed.

Mr. and Mrs. Beech Happily Surprised

Bridge and 500 were enjoyed until a late hour when the ladies served a tasty buffet luncheon. While this was in its height, the hosts were presented a beautiful present in remembrance of the occasion, which was but another of the program of surprises of the delightful evening. At an early hour in the morning the guests departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Beach many more equally delightful anniversaries.

Two pictures, painted by the popular artist, John T. Nolf, of Grand Detour, are now on exhibition at the National Academy of Design in New York city. This is one of the most exclusive shows in the United States.

Mr. Nolf who has been instructing at the Oak Park River Forest Art League this winter, in the advanced painting class, will paint this summer in Grand Detour. The figures in the paintings now being exhibited in New York City are Grand Detour characters. The twenty academicians on the National Academy board are severe and impartial critics.

Mr. and Mrs. Nolf are now having their cottage at Grand Detour, the Whippoorwill, remodeled and redecorated.

Mr. Nolf, who is an enthusiastic advocate of the beauties of the Rock River Valley, in his paintings of rural scenes and figures is most successful in conveying on canvas the peaceful atmosphere of the Valley and its people. Ask Mr. Nolf where his home is, and without a bit of hesitancy comes the name, "Grand Detour." He loves the Rock River and its rolling hills and valleys and wooded banks. Simple as all great artists are, broad minded and natural, Mr. Nolf has a generous heart and the soul of a poet, someone has said, "paintings are poems expressed in colors."

This year, Mr. Nolf, states he will paint figures, mostly He and many other artists are popularizing Rock River valley and the Nolf's will entertain many guests at their hospitable home in Grand Detour this summer.

Mr. Nolf is especially enthusiastic about the Lincoln statue in Lincoln park, Dixon, unveiled and dedicated during Dixon's centennial. He states Artist Crumley accomplished a masterpiece in this work, as everyone who studies the youthful, heroic figure, will agree.

Mrs. Wm. Rusch has returned from a visit of five months in the east, being called there by the death of her sister, Mrs. Frank (Ruth) Lindstrom, who at one time also lived in Dixon. Before returning home Mrs. Rusch visited relatives in New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island.

What Paris is Wearing

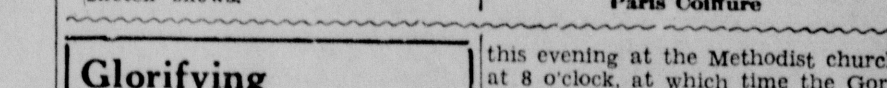

By K. D'ORSAY

PARIS—The stiffly waved, curly-cued coiffure of the late nineties, with 1931 additions, is much in evidence in Paris today. Women are wearing their hair in marcelles that cling closely to the lines of the head, framing an open brow and just revealing the tips of the ears, the whole thing finishing in rolls or curls at the nape of the neck.

A thousand new style devices have been launched, as aids to simplifying an otherwise fairly complicated headgear. Elaborate new hairpins and combs, intended to be invisible, and numbers of sleeping and morning caps, meant to hold the hair in place during off-hours, are crowding the Paris shops.

The most striking of all the new fashions are the new diamond hair-clips—outgrowths of the small jeweled clips that women are now wearing on their frocks, in place of brooches. The new clips are long and narrow and are equipped with little slides that hold waves in place at the sides of the head.

The current fashion is to wear these slides in sets of four, two at either side of the temples, as the sketch shows.

Jewels Rules the Waves in New Paris Coiffure

Glorifying Yourself

Beauty, quite like your spirits, often needs a pick-me-up late in the afternoon.

Sometimes you feel the need for it and have time for it just before going home from the office. Other times it is when you are staying in to dinner with someone you would like to bewitch with your beauty and charm.

The most effective thing in the world to do is to remove your frock or blouse and use warm water and soap to wash your face, neck, arms, under the arms and hands. This refreshes you second to nothing!

If you cannot do that, if you must effect your pick-me-up where you cannot shed your frock, then cleans-cream is often far more effective than dabbng water on gingerly.

After removing the day's soil, sit down limply in a chair for 10 minutes if you can make it. Just slump, if you could stretch out, that is all the more effective. But slumping in a chair, entirely relaxed, is something.

When that 10 minutes grace is over, try this simple exercise and see how it revives your fallen psychology.

Take your fingers of both hands and literally pick up your features. Begin with your thumbs planted firmly on your cheek bones and with your fingers very staunch, lift the face under the eyes, run the fingers firmly up over the bridge of the nose, massage it slightly between the eyes and then continue clear up, keeping up that lifting motion, clear to the hair line. Then take your hands and push up your scalp from the back of the neck up onto your head. Begin down on your shoulders, work upward firmly and in between strokes, bend the neck down and try to relax it. Then go back to your face, pick up the face the same way, concentrating your lifting between the eyes and smoothing out over the forehead. Stroke firmly up the sides of the face towards the temple. Massage the head slightly to make it tingle.

If you do it right, it is surprisingly refreshing. Finish this in about 10 minutes and then apply cold cream if you have time, vanishing cream if you haven't. Dash on an astringent, apply make-up, tidy your hair and see how much younger and prettier you feel.

This is literally a beauty pickup. I will be surprised if you are not pleased with what it does for you.

Busy Bee Class Won the Contest

The Loyal Links class of the Pine Creek Christian church and the Busy Bee class of the same church have been engaged in a contest for intermediate membership, and the Loyal Links class lost out, and they gave a banquet in honor of the winners at the church. The tables were beautiful in their decorations of green and white, nut cups and place cards and flowers, and streamers in green and white. The teachers, and the superintendent were seated at the table for the banquet and the children also were served with the delicious banquet, including oysters, etc., to tempting dessert. Afterward the children greatly enjoyed the games and contests provided, completing a happy evening.

A CHILD AND THE TRUTH.

One of the most illuminating stories of recent weeks, it seems to us, is the one telling the boy that there is no Santa Claus.

This story came over the United Press wires, and told how Marcel Dauprey hired a professor to coach his seven-year-old son in order that the boy might not acquire worldly knowledge at too early an age. The professor did his best, but he did break the news about Santa; and now M. Dauprey has sued him, charging that this bit of information caused the son "moral harm."

This misadventure is somehow characteristic. What parent, undertaking to bring up a child in the way he should go, has not bumped into just such a disappointment? All of us resolve that our own children shall be disillusioned about the world just a little more gently than we ourselves were disillusioned. We take especial pains to let their trailing clouds of glory hang about their shoulders as long as may be; and then one day, we wake up to discover that they know a great deal more than we had either supposed or desired.

All of this is perfectly natural; and unless one raises his son on a desert island, it is inevitable. For while children are given, by their parents, rose-colored spectacles to look at the world, they have a way of taking them off whenever they can and finding out for themselves. We older ones, knowing how cruel the world can be, are sentimentalists; the children, knowing nothing whatever about it and expecting the best, are little realists.

Indeed, they do not always expect the best. Who has not surprised his son or daughter suspecting that all is not quite for the best in an imperfect world? We want to shield them, and we try to, staving off unpleasant knowledge as long as we can; but they get around us, collecting unpleasant data about the cosmos as eagerly as so many writers for the American Mercury.

And it is probable that this is a good thing. For the longer we postpone disillusionment, the more painful and crippling it is apt to be when it arrives. The youngster who is used to it from an early age stands a much better chance than the one who has been too carefully protected.

Perhaps that is why such an enormous proportion of great men began their lives amid poverty. The children of the poor soon learn to see the world just as it is. Their illusions, of necessity, die early. Is that one reason why the log cabin has sent so many more men to the White House than has the mansion of the rich man?

THE REWARD OF FAITH.

Charlie Curtis of Pomeroy, O., may smile a little sometimes at the mottoes and poems which optimistically tell the world to keep on keeping on. It is so exactly what he did. And he won.

It took him 34 years to learn to walk after a farm accident paralyzed him at the age of 20. But he never gave up.

He could only move his head for the first 10 years of his illness. But he could talk into the telephone and give news as a country correspondent for a newspaper. Most men have an idea that heroes are found only at the head of the line of march where warriors go, steel-clad, to follow the flame of a gallant banner. They have not learned that there are infinitely greater martyrdoms where it takes more strength to make a lantern of one's courage and swing it in the dark, than to face the conquering cannons.

So Charlie Curtis kept on. Not because he wanted to be a hero. Just because he wanted to walk. After 10 years he sensed a slight feeling in the tips of his toes and fingers. Then he found he could roll over and could crawl a few inches. His sister fitted pads to his knees and hands and he crept. Then he grew strong enough for crutches and finally he threw them aside and walked. Now at the age of 70, he walks proudly and gayly from house to house, with wares to sell.

He won his reward... a pair of legs which most men never lose. He did it because his faith never faltered.

Americans, according to recent statistics, made and consumed, 8,000,000 pounds more pretzels last year than in 1925. Proving, we suppose, that pretzels are now worth their salt.

The new chief justice of the Florida Supreme Court formerly was a cook. He'll still see to it, however, that law violators get their just desserts.

Young Stribling, heavyweight contender, used to be referred to as a down-and-outer. But now that he has purchased a hotel in Florida it's more likely he'll have his inns-and-outs.

The man who went through the war without a scratch now wears woolen underwear each winter.

An English lecturer says American writers don't clearly define their characters. Our authors should realize that clarity begins at home.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

One hammerhead began to scold. Some pretty scenery drifted by and Said Scouty. "It thinks we're too bold. Or maybe it's afraid that we will harm it's little nest. Now, wouldn't that be mean of you? No wonder it makes such a fuss. Let's leave the little birds alone. I think that would be best."

"You're right," the Travel Man replied. And then he stepped to Scouty's side and gently slapped him on the back. "I like good boys," said he. "Most boys would try to scare those birds by shouting lots of crazy words, but you prefer to leave them. You are kind as you can be."

"And now let's drive to Durban to see. It isn't very far from here and, if we have good luck we'll get there ere the day is gone and then we'll sleep until the dawn." The Tinymites agreed to this and all hopped on their truck.

"Away they went, in spirits high. Now and then they'd pass a native who would wave his hand. "They are all friendly over here," said Coppy. "There is naught to fear. Why, everybody we have met has treated us just grand."

They reached the town of Durban soon and shortly, neath a brilliant moon, sat down, out in the open, and enjoyed a wondrous meal. Within a big hotel they slept. At dawn right out of bed they crept and Carpy, as he washed himself said, "Gee, how good I feel!"

Right after breakfast they all went out to a dairy farm and spent an hour or so at looking round. There was a lot to see. Said Scouty, "Gee, do they make cheese? And, if we have good luck, if you please?"

The Travel Man said, "I'll find out. Come on, boy, follow me."

(The Tinymites head for Bombay, India, in the next story.)

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

MADISON'S BIRTH
On March 16, 1751, James Madison, fourth president of the United States, was born at Port Conway, Va.

After graduating from Princeton at the age of 20, he studied law. Five years later he entered politics by becoming a member of the Virginia convention, and, though too modest for an orator, he became one of the most eminent, accomplished and respected American statesmen.

As a member of the convention of 1787, which framed the Federal Constitution, Madison took complete notes in shorthand, thus producing the only record of its proceedings and debates. In 1792 he became the leader of the Republican party in Congress, and wrote the Kentucky resolutions of 1798, which contain the basis of the State Rights doctrine.

In 1809, after he had served as secretary of state under Jefferson, Madison was elected president of the United States. In his second term Madison approved the establishment of a national bank as a financial necessity. In 1817 he retired to his home at Montpelier, Va., where he served as rector of the University of Virginia.

Daily Health Talk

HOT BATH IS SIMPLEST WAY
Heat applied to any inflamed tissue serves several purposes. It brings about an increase in the circulation which results in the exchange of waste products and the bringing in of materials which combat infection.

The muscles in an inflammatory condition are painful on motion; the application of heat tends to reduce the spasm and tension and to stop the pain on motion.

Heat may be applied to people with rheumatism in many different ways. One of the simplest methods is simply to immerse the body entirely in hot water, and thereafter to put the person between blankets so that the perspiration will be induced, the temperature of the body raised, and the chemical interchanges in the body increased.

Baths may be modified by the addition of various types of oils and salts which serve to stimulate the skin and perhaps to increase the tendency to perspiration.

Hot air baths are provided by heating the air in a room to various degrees from 100 degrees Fahrenheit up to 120 degrees Fahrenheit in a room in which the air is hot and dry, perspiration is profuse, but the temperature of the body is not raised much because the perspiration evaporates so rapidly.

In the Russian bath, steam is driven into the room and hence there is not only copious perspiration, but also a rise of the temperature of the body. When the temperature of the steam or hot bath is over 100 degrees, a considerable tax on the system may occur, and such baths should not be taken by anyone except persons of fairly robust constitution after such baths, anyone who takes them should lie quietly for at least one hour before attempting to dress and go outdoors.

For people who are less robust, the bath at a temperature of 97 degrees Fahrenheit is more suitable. Experts in the treatment of diseases by hydrotherapy have also developed the device called whirlpool baths in which hot water is driven rapidly around the vat by an especially arranged system of pipes and valves. The whirlpool bath is exceedingly helpful in softening tissues relieving pain, and preparing inflamed muscles and joints for later massage.

Massage is a valuable therapeutic measure particularly when properly associated with heat and the care of the body generally. Great care must be taken with massage when tissues are painful. It should never be forcible as long as there is acute inflammation. Rough exercise or manipulation of inflamed joints may bring about serious injury.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system. If you have a pale face, hollow cheeks, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-go feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

PILLARS OF THE CHURCH

"Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine." Luke 15: 31.—(Read Luke 15:25-32.)

Meditation
This elder brother has been sadly abused. It is true that he betrayed some faults of temper. Good people are not always as amiable as they might be. And the elder brother was a good man. He stayed at home and worked hard to keep things going while his brother was wasting his substance with riotous living. Such men are pillars of society, and of the church. They are a reliable asset while the prodigals are a liability. It is well enough that we see their faults for our own self-correction; let us not miss their superb virtues. And they will have their reward. In the parable the returned prodigal got a welcome and a feast; but the elder brother got a commendation and inherited the estate. These steady, stay at after all.

Prayer
Our Heavenly Father whose promises are to those who walk uprightly, we thank Thee for faithful men and devoted women and we pray that Thou wilt guide us to become of their company. In Jesus' name Amen.

Down in Tampico, Mexico, local manufacturers are setting an example that should be followed by manufacturers in the United States and Canada.

Stomach Ulcers Cause Life of Misery

Formerly Were Hard to Cure—But Now You Have Only to Take ULCICUR

While Ulcers of the Stomach are today probably afflicting a greater number of people than ever before in history—owing to the changes in food habits and other environments of present day civilization—it is indeed fortunate that we have a remedy for Ulcers as dependable as ULCICUR. Not only will ULCICUR quickly remedy an ulcerated condition but it will also bring relief for almost any stomach disorder.

Mr. D. J. Eugene of 1232 Thorndale Ave., Chicago, Illinois reporting on the condition of his wife says: "She was at the Lakeside Hospital, taken there after she had had 23 hemorrhages one day, brought on by stomach ulcers. Doctors said an operation was necessary. But she could take no nourishment to build up for an operation. Heard of ULCICUR and tried it. She is in better health today than ever before. Gained 35 pounds—and weighs more than in last ten years. Eats anything and everything with no ill effects. I owe you a lot."

ULCICUR is recognized as the treatment most in demand for stomach ailments, so nearly every drug store carries it in stock continually, making it easy for you to try a bottle. If for any reason your nearest druggist happens to be without it, ask him to get a bottle for you.

Springfield Man Killed By Thieves

Springfield, Ill., March 14—(UP)—Two men were sought today for the murder of John Anderson, 29, who died late yesterday from a bullet wound in his abdomen, sustained when he surprised the men in the act of robbing the safe in his home.

Anderson, police believe, was shot by the bandits and then forced to open the safe which contained approximately $10. Taken to a hospital for an emergency operation, he apparently was on the road to recovery when he suffered a relapse and died without giving authorities full details of the crime.

Police sought to connect the robbery and shooting with a series of mysterious messages and phone calls which have been received by Anderson's brother during the past few months, in which money demands were made under threat of death to members of the family.

Robbers Had Planned Death Of Prosecutor

Bloomington, Ill., Mar. 14—(AP)—McLean county authorities said today they had uncovered a plot to assassinate State's Attorney Joseph W. DePew, his brother, Magistrate Earl B. DePew, and City Detective Jack Penn.

Sheriff James Reeder announced last night that George Lane, sentenced to Joliet prison for robbery with a gun, had revealed the plan naming Clayton Hotchkiss, still in jail, as an accomplice.

Sheriff Reeder said the plan had been formulated before their arrests. When Lane and Hotchkiss were taken into custody, the plot was balked. State's Attorney DePew said he was doing nothing about the plot.

CHARGE OLEO SALES

Belvidere, Ill., Mar. 14—(AP)—Boone county dairymen led by Harry C. Myers, president of the County Farm Bureau, and Wrate Hill, director of the Pure Milk Association, today were on record in a complaint against the National Tea Company store here for selling yellow Oleomargarine.

Muscular-Rheumatic Aches and Pains

DRAW them out with a "counter-irritant." Distressing muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness—generally respond pleasantly to good old Musterole. Doctors call it a "counter-irritant," because it gets action and is not just a salve. Musterole helps bring soreness and pain to the surface, and thus gives natural relief. You can feel how its warming action penetrates and stimulates blood circulation. But do not stop with one application. Apply this soothing, cooling, healing ointment generously to the affected area once every hour for five hours. Used by millions for over 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses.

Keep Musterole handy; jars and tubes. To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

SNOW CONCEALS FATE OF VICTIM OF KIDNAPERS

Love Triangle Is Revealed
By Reported Crime
Of 11 Days Ago

Chicago, Mar. 14—(UP)—Huge snowdrifts, remaining from the storm of a week ago, delayed today the search through a 30,000-acre forest preserve for Miss Norma Newby, 36, whose married sweetheart waited eleven days to report she had been kidnapped by two bandits who beat him into unconsciousness.

County highway police, after searching the forest preserve as thoroughly as they can until the snow melts, expressed opinions Miss Newby either had been killed or was held prisoner by the robbers.

Frank J. Murray, 47, a salesman, told the officers yesterday Miss Newby was with him when she was kidnapped by two men who beat him and stole his car.

Police attributed Murray's several conflicting stories to a desire to keep from his wife an admission he made to them that he and Miss Newby had been sweethearts for 17 years.

Woman Was Engaged
Murray said he and Miss Newby were sitting in his car on March 2 when they were held up and he was forced to drive into the lonely forest preserve outside the city. There, he said, he was beaten and drove two hours later to find that the robbers, Miss Newby and his automobile had disappeared.

Murray said he walked to a hospital, received treatment, but did not tell of Miss Newby's disappearance which was reported the following day by her mother, Mrs. Lillian Sheehan.

The mother later told police of her daughter's love affair with Murray and said Miss Newby was engaged to marry Arthur Dorion, a street car conductor. Dorion told officers he had not known of his fiancée's affair with Murray.

Last Member of Mystery Family Dead In New York

New York, March 16—(UP)—Miss Ella V. Von E. Wendel, last of the mysterious family to occupy a gloomy brownstone house at 3th Street and Fifth Avenue, is dead.

She and her five sisters, heirs of John Gottlieb Wendel, who made $100,000,000 in the fur business, had become legendary figures because of the millions of dollars they refused for their property—one of the most valuable sites in the world. They preferred, instead, to live in seclusion behind the high fence that surrounded the house. Gradually the sisters died until only Miss Ella was left. Skyscrapers threw their shadows across the brownstone house and Fifth Avenue hummed with traffic, but Miss Ella still rejected offers made by real estate men, remembering that years ago her father had said, "buy, but never sell real estate."

In the latter years Miss Ella's only companion was a dog which slept in one of the twin beds in her bedroom. She rarely appeared in public.

The dog, Tobey, was exercised daily in a narrow strip of ground just inside the high board fence that shut off the Wendel estate from curious of Fifth Avenue. Real estate men had attempted to purchase the plot but the attempts were unavailing as Miss Wendel's brother contended the property should be kept so as to provide Tobey a place to exercise.

Miss Ella rarely left the town house. When she did she wore the costumes of a quarter of a century ago. She did not use an automobile although there were two custom made machines in the garage—both on jacks. In the garage—which originally was built as a stable house—was a carriage which 50 years ago was one of the most fashionable in the city.

Only one of the six sisters married. She became Mrs. Rebecca A. D. Wendel Swope. When she died a few years ago it was discovered she had left $100,000,000 to fourteen churches and charities. However, an obscure clause revealed that the estate also was jointly owned by Miss Rebecca and Miss Ella, and the tremendous fortune did not pass from Wendel control.

One of the sisters, Miss Georgiana, rebelled from the strict rulings of her brother and left the Wendel estates. She went to Europe, learned several languages and became thoroughly modern. She returned to this country and was declared a mental incompetent. She died at a sanitarium in 1929.

Miss Ella, it was disclosed today left a will. Should it follow the desires of Mrs. Swope the vast fortune—guarded and protected these many years from strange hands—will go to charity.

In "Love Market" Probe

These two girls, Alice Blake and Helen Livingston, are held in technical custody in Los Angeles while investigation is made of alleged participation of Alexander Pantages in the "love market" said to have been maintained to provide gay young companions for wealthy men. Pantages, wealthy theater proprietor, is still facing final settlement of charges filed against him by Eunice Pringle, a dancer.

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN

Author of "HEART HUNGRY," etc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
GYPSY SCORRIDE, 15-year-old typist, meets the boat on which ALAN CROSBY returns from a year and a half in Paris. They are not engaged but there has been an "understanding" between them. Gypsy sees a beautiful woman on the pier whom Crosby identifies as Mrs. Langley, a ship's acquaintance.

Two nights later he breaks an engagement with Gypsy on a plea of business. She goes to the theater alone and encounters him with Mrs. Langley. There is a scene. Mrs. Langley drives away alone. Gypsy and Crosby go home in a cab, quarreling all the way. Next day Gypsy attempts to apologize and Crosby refers to their romance as a boy and girl affair, now outgrown. Gypsy is crushed. When she is criticized for carelessness at the office she resigns her job. To forget her misery she accepts an invitation from her wealthy cousin ANNE TROWBRIDGE, to take the place of another dinner guest. The dinner is boring and when the others are playing bridge Gypsy escapes, determined to go home. She hears a noise in another room, opens the door and sees a man climbing in the window.

CW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER X

GYPSY'S heart seemed to stop beating. The man in the window stared back at her. One of his knees rested on the windowsill. An other move and he would have been inside.

"You'd better go away," the girl warned, "or I'll scream."

The man continued to stare. The gray hat brim shaded his face, half concealing his features. He was wearing an overcoat and in his crowded position he must have been most uncomfortable. Still he did not move.

"You'd better go," Gypsy repeated, "If I scream you'll be arrested!"

Apparently the stranger had found his voice.

"You—you live here?" he asked.

"Yes. No—I mean why don't you leave?"

Gypsy had been too startled to be afraid. Suddenly it occurred to her that the burglar might have looted a half-dozen apartments in the building. It was foolish to let him set away. Before he could answer she reversed her orders:

"Come on in! There—stand over there."

She pointed to a spot near the center of the room. Slowly, clumsily, the man climbed over the ledge. He stood up and she saw that he was tall and broad shouldered. His dark overcoat was a good one. There was nothing about his appearance to conform with Gypsy's idea of a thief. He did not even wear a mask.

Obliquely he walked to the spot toward which she pointed.

Gypsy edged her way between the burglar and the window.

"You're a fine looking fellow to be climbing into people's windows," she stormed. "Now let's see what you've stolen. Empty your pockets and put the things on the bed."

"Say, listen—" for the first time she noticed his bass droned lady, if you'll let me explain—

"You can explain to the police!"

"Good Lord—say whose apartment is this?"

"Are you so particular whose things you take?"

"Now wait a minute! Give me a chance! I haven't the slightest idea in the world who you may be and I don't blame you for thinking I'm a thief, but you've got to believe what I'm going to say. I thought this was Phil Trowbridge's apartment."

"What?"

"I said I thought this was Phil Trowbridge's apartment."

"Why—why is it?"

THE burglar gave her a searching look. "Then what are you doing

"Don't do it," he said. "I've got a better idea. Let's get married!"

here?" he demanded.

"I don't see what difference that makes—"

"Don't you thought? It can make a lot. For instance it might make you, young woman, the unlawful prowler instead of myself. It means I won't have to spend the night in jail. He took a quick glance about the room. "This is Trowbridge's place! Sure, I recognize it now."

The man pointed to an object in the corner of the room. "See that traveling bag?" he said. "There's a leather tag on the handle with a name and address on it. Look at it!"

Suddenly their positions had changed. The girl obeyed meekly. The heavy pigskin bag bore the name James R. Wallace. Gypsy read it aloud. The address was a town called Forest City.

"Now look at this," the man commanded. "Oh, take it—you don't have to be afraid!"

It was a card that he held out. In plain Roman letters was the same name, James R. Wallace.

The girl's face showed she did not understand.

"All right," the bass voice was continuing. "Probably you won't believe that's my name and my traveling bag. Then there's nothing else to do but get hold of Phil—"

He had started toward the door.

"Wait a minute," exclaimed Gypsy. "You mean—you mean you're James Wallace and you know Phil—?"

"That's the impression I've been trying to convey. Let me add that I don't know who you are but for the time being this is my room. I'm staying here. Have been since last night."

"Then why aren't you at the party?"

"Because I don't like parties. Now if I've convinced you there's no need to call in the police perhaps you won't mind if I take off this overcoat."

"DON'T like parties either," said the girl. "I was running away from this one."

"That so? Interesting. My unusual mode of entrance" (he waved toward the window) "was prompted by the same idea."

Gypsy had sunk into a chair. "Is it really true?" she asked. "That you're a friend of Phil's and that you're stopping here? Anne didn't say anything about having a house guest."

"Anne didn't know I was in town. She thought I was having dinner with some people out on Long Island. Then I—changed my plans and didn't want to take a chance on running into her dinner party gang. Happened to know I could go to the floor above and come down the fire escape. Wait a minute—maybe this'll convince you I'm not lying."

He pulled a collection of letters and papers from his inner coat pocket.

"Here—saved it for the address." The young man held toward her a letter on Phil Trowbridge's office stationery. Gypsy read it hastily. She saw the signature.

"The girl smiled uncertainly. 'I'm convinced,' she said. 'Excuse me for mistaking you for a burglar.' She paused, then added, 'Maybe I ought to introduce myself. I'm Gypsy McBride—Anne's cousin.'"

"How do you do?" Wallace took off his hat, tossed it aside.

It occurred to Gypsy that all through the interview the young man had not smiled. He had blue eyes, very level in their gaze, and hair with a reddish cast. Ordinary features improved by a good chin. But Gypsy did not notice that. A young man one might look at twice because of his strapping physique and the way he carried his shoulders. Gypsy, looking at him more carefully, noticed the well tailored blue suit. And she had thought him a burglar!

Instead of smiling or showing any friendliness Wallace glowered.

"Better run along back to your bridge game now," he said. "They'll be looking for you."

"I'm not going back."

"What's the matter? Don't like the party? Then what did you come for?"

Gypsy's dark eyes met the blue ones. "I came because I was alone some," she said. "I wanted to forget about something, but the longer I stayed the more lonesome I got."

Wallace eyed her solemnly.

"That's too bad. So you're lonesome? As a matter of fact I've been lonesome myself. And I'll tell you what I'm going to do about it—celebrate! Maybe you'd like to come along. I've got a lot to celebrate to night."

"What makes you lonesome?" Gypsy asked curiously.

WALLACE had been leaning against a chest of drawers. Now he pulled a chair toward him and sat down.

"I'll tell you," he said slowly. "Maybe you'll get a laugh. I'm going to celebrate because the girl I expected to marry has just informed me she's made a better catch. Marry me?—why should she when she can have the Phillips millions? Why, indeed. Well—why don't you laugh?"

Wallace laughed coldly. "I suppose you've been jilted too," he suggested drily.

The girl nodded her head. "That's what I was trying to forget about," she said.

Wallace laughed shortly. It was not a pleasant laugh. "That's funny!" he declared. "That's a good one. Well, why don't you find some body else? Show him you don't care? Celebrate!"

"But I don't want anybody else."

She paused, then continued. "You see, I'm Anne's cousin, but I really don't belong here. This isn't even my dress—it's Anne's. Anne just asked me because someone else couldn't come. I work—"

Suddenly she stopped, smiling ruefully.

"I mean I did work," Gypsy corrected herself. "I'm a typist but I threw up my job this afternoon."

"What are you going to do now?"

"I don't know. Look for something else I suppose. I haven't thought about it—"

Wallace leaned forward. "Don't do it," he said. "I've got a better idea. Let's get married!"

SIX KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS IN MID-ILLINOIS

Five Of The Victims Died In Railroad Crossing Crashes

Springfield, Ill., March 16—(UP)—Six persons were killed and another seriously injured yesterday in a series of automobile accidents in Central Illinois. Five of the victims were killed in railroad crossing crashes, four at Auburn and the other at Lincoln, while the sixth died of injuries sustained in a collision at Decatur.

The dead are: Virgil O. Conlee, 21, Carlinville. Rachel Marian Wilson, 16, Auburn. Ruth Riggs, 17, Auburn. Charles Alderson, 25, Carlinville. Robert E. Shontz, 47, Springfield. Franklin Cloyd, Decatur.

Conlee, Alderson, Miss Wilson and Miss Riggs met death when their automobile was struck by a fast Chicago & Alton passenger train at Auburn. Conlee, Alderson and Miss Wilson were killed instantly and Miss Riggs died shortly after in a Springfield hospital.

Witnesses of the crash said the automobile was driven squarely into the path of the approaching train. The crossing is located near the Auburn business district and is said to be unguarded.

Robert Shontz, prominent local American Legion official, was killed early yesterday morning at Lincoln when he drove his automobile in the path of another Chicago and Alton train.

William Cloyd was killed and William Malson injured in a collision at Decatur yesterday afternoon.

LOOP LIGHTS

Chicago, Ill.—Al Capone, during a recent court appearance, met one of his biographers, one who had accused him of almost everything but stepping on little wild flowers.

"Well, Al, did I miss anything?" asked the writer.

"No, not a thing," responded the gang chief. "You ought to be making a lotta dough out of that stuff. When do I get my cut?"

Any big storm provides its touch of humor, but the big snow storm furnished one incident reminiscent of the old slapstick movie comedies. A pedestrian, blinded by the swirling snow, stumbled through a revolving door into a Michigan boulevard restaurant, slipped on the tile floor and slid into a waitress, knocking her and the dishes she carried, to the floor.

It takes a real linguist to read the Chicago movie ads these days. On one page recently, these titles of current all-talkers appeared: "Die Madchen von Reeperbahn," "Mordprozess Mary Dugan," "Sous les Toits de Paris," and "Le Roi S'Ennuie."

When Western Union calls you to read a telegram over the phone, you needn't worry. If it were bad news, they wouldn't call. All "Two Star" messages—death, accident, serious illness—are delivered in person by the oldest and most capable messenger boys. They are instructed in first aid for fainting.

Paul Whiteman wears a heavy link chain on his right wrist. In the center of the chain is a metal medallion on which is etched in black, the trademark of the Whiteman band—a head of its leader.

In strange contrast with the beautiful blossoms of hundreds of flower species was a scraggly little cactus plant that drew as much attention as any other single exhibit at the Home and Garden show. It was the "Crown of Thorns," a native of the Holyland, and believed to be the same type that was used when Christ was crucified.

Other unusual cactus plant were the Cerus Trianguliers, which blooms only at night, and the Gasteria Nigrens, a native of South Africa shaped exactly automobile springs. Its grower said that it was from this plant that Henry Ford got the idea for the springs on his "Model T."

The only new show of the week-end is an old one. "The Student Prince," one of the most popular operas.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Substance" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 15.

The Golden Text was, "Honour the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of all thine increase" (Proverbs 3:9).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Lift up your eyes to the heavens, and look upon the earth beneath: for the heavens shall vanish away like smoke, and the earth shall wax old like a garment, and they that dwell therein shall die in like manner: but my salvation shall be for ever, and my righteousness shall not be abolished" (Isaiah 51:6).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The objects cognized by the physical senses have not the reality of substance. They are only what mortal belief calls them" (p. 311).

Dog Saved Life Of Soviet Official

Tokyo, Mar. 16—(AP)—Police credited a dog with having saved the life of high Soviet official from an assassin here today.

The intended victim, Paul Anikieff, Soviet commercial counselor here and chief of the trade delegation handling the Japan-Russian fisheries dispute, was wounded dangerously. He probably would have been shot to death, police asserted, had not a dog belonging to a Japanese neighbor intervened.

Nobukatsu Sato, 34, later surrendered, declaring he was responsible for the shooting. He was taken to the embassy, but just turned his car from the driveway of his home when the assassin leaped to the running board of the machine and opened fire with a small automatic pistol. Two bullets struck the Russian before the dog leaped at the assassin. The man swung on the dog, sending two shots into its body, then returned to Anikieff. The Russian received the last bullet in his chest.

Sato is a Japanese with a Russian wife.

THE OLD COUNSELLOR'S COLUMN

The Motion Picture Industry
ARTICLE II.

It is interesting to inquire into the reasons for the popularity of motion pictures, even in times when there is a great deal of unemployment, and business in other lines is slow.

One reason, I think, is that the motion picture supplies something which few of us can do without—namely, entertainment, recreation, relaxation. We all require recreation in some form, and for millions of people there is nothing which can quite take the place of motion pictures. They take us into scenes which most of us could never enjoy by any other means. They bring us the news of the week in its most vivid form. Through the eyes of the camera we get close-up views of great football battles; we see our cadets at West Point pass in review; we witness maneuvers of the United States Navy; and we sit in on the rites attending the coronation of an African king. Much can be shown on the screen that could not possibly be represented on the ordinary stage. But one of the most important features of all is the fact that motion pictures are low in cost. Even when times are not prosperous, most people can find the money to pay for admission to a motion picture show.

Now and then I come across a person who is disposed to criticize motion pictures because, as he says, they are sensational and sometimes not particularly elevating. But I believe that the same answer applies here that might be given to those who are inclined to criticize the newspapers for being somewhat sensational. Any medium which must make a mass appeal is almost certain at times to drop below the standards of our most intelligent people. But it seems to me that the defects of the motion pictures and the newspapers, such as they are, should not be allowed to blind us to the tremendous social and economic service which they perform. If you sum up the positive and the negative factors of either, I am sure that the balance would be very heavily on the positive side, and I am sure that almost any fair-minded person would be quite ready to admit it.

The conservative investor who examines the motion picture field can hardly fail to be impressed by the progress which this industry has made in the past twenty years, and by the important position which it occupies in the business organization of the country today. In considering any field of investment, it is also a good idea to give some consideration to the outlook for the future. Do the motion pictures render a service which will prove of permanent value, and are prospects good for continued growth in the industry?

I should answer both questions decidedly in the affirmative. People will always seek entertainment and relaxation. For the great majority, motion pictures provide this more satisfactorily, and at lower cost than can be provided by any other agency.

SHERIFF KILLED BY FRIEND WHO WAS BANK THIEF

Indiana Officer Had Insisted The Latter Was Not Guilty

Monticello, Ind., March 16—(UP)—A life-long friendship between Sheriff Ray Fisher, 40, of White county and Scott Talbutt, farmer, ended tragically Sunday when Talbutt killed Fisher, wounded a deputy, killed his own brother, then committed suicide rather than be arrested for bank robbery.

Talbutt, 43, fired upon Fisher without warning when the Sheriff and his deputy, Barney Ireland, went to the Talbutt farm to serve a warrant issued in Tippecanoe county against Talbutt and his brother, William, 34. The warrant charged that the brothers participated on Feb. 6 in holding up the Battle Ground bank and stealing $1,400.

Sheriff Fisher had delayed arresting the Talbuts for several days, insisting to officers of the neighboring county he believed them innocent. Scott Talbutt and he had been friends for years. Talbutt supported him when Fisher ran for Sheriff. Identified As Robbers.

Officials of the Battle Ground bank visited the Talbutt farm on an invented errand last Friday. Later they identified the brothers as the bandits. The warrant was sent to Fisher to serve as the Talbutt farm is just inside the line in this county.

When Fisher asked Ireland to accompany him he told the deputy it was unnecessary to take a gun as he "knew" the brothers would not resist.

At the farm, the Sheriff was reading the warrant to William Talbutt when Scott stepped suddenly from a corn crib and opened fire with a shotgun, killing Fisher instantly. Ireland, unarmed, ran a bullet ripped through his hand as he dodged across a field to summon aid.

When posse surrounded the farm later they found the bodies of both Talbuts in the house. Scott, apparently had shot his brother, then committed suicide and fallen across William's body.

Sheriff Fisher was a World War veteran. He leaves his wife and two children.

INSIDE BASEBALL WILL BE SEEN IN PARKS THIS YEAR

Training Camp Activities Indicate Changes In Tactics

BY DIXON STEWART

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Mar. 16—(UP)—Training camp activities indicate that "inside" baseball—missing from the game since the advent of the rabbit ball and cheap home runs—will return in 1931.

A majority of major league managers apparently are convinced that the newly adopted ball, with its heavier cover and larger stitching, will sound the knell of "power house" tactics, and they are preparing their teams for a return to the almost forgotten "play for a run" type of offense.

Bunting, sliding and base stealing—things which players of a decade ago learned before they graduated from the sandlots, but which are a profound mystery to most present day youngsters—are receiving unusual emphasis in the various camps, and many players are starting in to learn baseball all over again.

Sliding pits went out of style with pop-top pants, but this season every major league camp has one or more.

The New York Yankees, first of the free-swinging "power house" teams, also are leading in the renewed development of "inside" baseball tactics. Manager Joe McCarthy has been drilling his players in the art of bunting and recently won an exhibition game by the use of the long neglected "squeeze" play, with larrying Lou Gehrig laying down the bunt which won the game.

EIGHT QUINTETS READY FOR PLAY IN STATE MEET

State High School Basketball Championship To Be Decided

By WILLIAM WEEKES

Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago, March 16—(AP)—Survivors of the original 793 which started the journey, eight Illinois high school basketball teams will start the struggle for the big prize the state championship, Thursday afternoon.

For the first time in history a Chicago team has made its way to the finals at Champaign where they will be staged by the University of Illinois. Harrison Tech, by its overwhelming 39 to 5 victory over East Aurora, in the Joliet sectional, qualified for the finals and stamped itself as a strong title possibility. Harrison will meet Mt. Vernon, winner of the Bridgeport sectional, in the opening first round game Thursday afternoon.

Peoria Manual, defending champion, fought its way back to another shot at the title by smothering Wenona, 41 to 19, at Peoria, and will meet Galesburg in the first Thursday night battle. Galesburg moved into the final by walloping Kewanee, 40 to 14, at Moline. With all but one member of the 1930 championship team back, Manual is a hot favorite to make it two in a row, something accomplished only once before when Elgin was able to win in 1924 and 1925.

Decatur will tackle Collinsville in the second Thursday afternoon first rounder. The former scraped into the big tournament by a 16 to 14 victory over Springfield at Springfield, while Collinsville had little difficulty in winning the East St. Louis sectional title from the entertaining school, 32 to 24.

The final first rounder will pair Johnston City, state champion in 1929, with Rantoul. Johnston City nipped Simpson, 14 to 12, in an overtime struggle at Carbondale, and Rantoul moved in by winning the Danville sectional from Armstrong 23 to 19.

Of the finalists, Manual, Johnston City, Galesburg and Mt. Vernon have been state champions in the past. Galesburg won the tournament in 1913, Mt. Vernon in 1920, Johnston City and Manual in 1929 and 1930, respectively.

Five schools have won the tournament twice since it was inaugurated in 1908. Bloomington won in 1910 and 1967; Rockford reached the top in 1911 and 1919; Freeport achieved the honor in 1915 and 1926; Centralia won in 1918 and 1922, while Elgin gained its titles in 1924-25.

Revengeful Father Returns With Indian Scalps

Bringing weird evidence that grim vengeance had had its play, Francisco Fimbres, rancher near Douglas, Ariz., has returned from the wilds of northern Mexico with the scalps of three Apache Indians whom Fimbres and his expedition killed while searching for his kidnapped son, held prisoner by the Indians since 1926. Fimbres' wife was murdered by the Indians at the time they made off with his child. This was his second expedition of revenge and he is shown here (kneeling, right) with his grisly trophies and some of his hardy band. He thinks the child, now about eight years old, is still alive.

Mid-West Digs Out of Snowdrifts

After an almost snowless winter, the whole mid-western section of the country was buried under a blanket of March snow as deep as 15 inches. This huge plow, cutting a path in the outskirts of Chicago, shows how cities dig themselves out, but many rural sections were badly tied up by the storm.

Hearing on amended petition. Certificate of mailing copies approved.

Velie And Companion Robbed Of Jewelry

Chicago, Mar. 14—(AP)—Police today were trying to unravel the mystery of two men who stalked into the apartment of John Velie, wealthy mine owner, and robbed him and Mrs. Dorothy Chappell, a guest, of $4,000 and jewelry valued at $2,600.

The holdup took place shortly after the couple had been dismissed in court on charges growing out of a fist fight between Velie and Mrs. Chappell's husband, Chalmers, on a Milwaukee train recently.

Entering the apartment by a ruse, the men declared: "this is a stickup. We saw your rocks in court and we want 'em."

Velie, believing the men to be linked in some manner with Mrs. Chappell's husband, started to fight. He was promptly knocked unconscious, and, with Mrs. Chappell, was tied into chairs.

ROBBED U. S. MAILS

St. Louis, Mar. 14—(AP)—Louis de Burgh, 57, a postal clerk, was arrested last night and confessed, post-office inspectors said, that he had been stealing from the mails since 1927 because his $175 monthly salary was insufficient to purchase of his usual gallon of whiskey a week. Inspectors said they found in his possession 35 letters, stolen from the mails. DeBurgh entered the service in 1908 and was within six years of retirement on a pension of $100 a month. He is the father of six children.

FAMILY TRAGEDY

Equality, Ill., Mar. 14—(AP)—Charlie Colbert, 27, died today of gunshot wounds received in a quarrel with his estranged wife and her brother at a dance near here last night. The wife's brother was held for a coroner's inquest today.

Colbert was shot seven times saying as he fell "you boys killed me, but I love your sister." Colbert emptied his revolver into the automobile but the bullets struck no one.

KINKS

Do Impair Your Telephone Service

Take a look at your telephone cord. Is it knotted? If it is, there lurks trouble. Kinks in your cord mean kinks in your service, present or to come.

Inside the cord is a pair of conductors. Not stout wires. Each conductor is loosely woven of many tiny strands of tinsel, to make for flexibility.

Breaks in a few of these strands may not wholly interrupt your service but are likely to impair it. Noisy lines, indistinct speech, frequent disconnects are some of the annoyances kinked cords can cause.

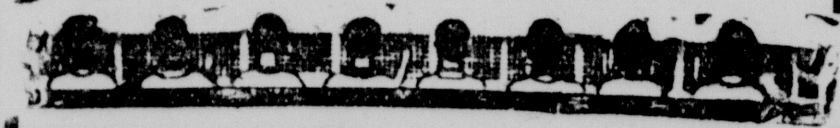

If the outside of the cord is badly frayed and worn call our Trouble Department and we will supply a new one.

The KINKS? You should keep them out.
